

CIA-PLO ATTEMPTS TO BLAME HIJACK ON IRAQIS

Nov. 24 (IPS)--In an hysterical attempt to slander the non-terrorist government of pro-Soviet Iraq, the CIA-controlled Palestine Liberation Organization's (PLO) Cairo-based "Voice of Palestine" radio charged today that the current terrorist hijack of a British Airways jetliner was "planned and executed by hirelings working for the Iraqi government." The charge caps a months-long campaign by the Rockefeller-funded PLO to isolate and weaken the Iraqi regime, whose pro-socialist policies and alliance with the non-CIA Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine (PFLP) have served to expose the treacherous PLO leadership, including arch-terrorist Yasser Arafat.

The wild anti-Iraq charges by the PLO radio were contradicted even by the Egyptian government, which correctly laid the blame for the terror operation on Libya and its fanatic gun-running dictator Muammar Qaddafi. The Islamic-fascist Libyan regime has long been used by the CIA as a base of operations under Qaddafi, and the Dubai-to-Tunis hijacking was run out of Libya under the joint auspices of Arafat's Black September lieutenant Abu Iyad and British Near East office chief James Craig, who flew to Tunis for the occasion.

IPS INTERVIEW WITH HERMAN KAHN: WOULD YOU BUY A USED FUTURE FROM THIS MAN?

NEW YORK, N.Y., Nov. 24 (IPS)--In a recent interview with IPS, futurologist Herman Kahn confirmed that no one but a criminal psychotic could field "ideas" for the Rockefeller family.

The portly Kahn, who is the founder and director of the Hudson Institute, gained notoriety during the late 1950s by calculating the number of "megadeaths" that could be expected as a result of nuclear war between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Also present at the interview was Professor Robert Mundell of Columbia University. Mundell organized the conference of bankers and economists held near Siena, Italy in September, exposed by IPS as a planning session for the Chileanization of Great Britain and Italy.

During the wide-ranging discussion, the following exchange took place:

IPS: If you reduce the level of energy "throughput" into the biosphere, as the Hudson Institute proposes, you tend to set into motion entropic processes which get out of your control. The result would be an ecological holocaust. For example, in Brazil, where levels of nutrition and health have been reduced, you see the spread of new types of plagues faster than you can find vaccines for them.

Kahn: Well, there are two basic types of population curves, the up and down curve, where you expand population, overgraze, and so forth, and then have to reduce population. Or there is the collapse curve, where you have famine and disease.

I would divide the world up into four categories. 1.4 billion people are "rich"--include Portugal in this. 0.85 billion live in Communist Asia. 1.05 billion are "coping"--like Mexico and Brazil. That is, income is trickling down to at least one-third of the population. People always misunderstand "trickle down" theories because they think wealth is supposed to get to the bottom. It never does....But there is no study which shows a correlation between hunger and disease. You won't have plagues that kill half the world's population. (At this point Mr. Kahn, who had ordered a Japanese dinner, paused to eat a raw squid.)

Mundell: No, we are about to have another plague. We have them every 300 years. You know, 1100, 1400, then--I forget the dates exactly.

Kahn: You mean the one in the eighteenth century where they all danced around?

Mundell: That was it. Anyway, every 300 years you wipe out half the world's population.

Kahn: Oh, a cycle theory. I'm not sure about cycle theories...

Mundell: Well, anyway, I only make up these theories for fun.

Kahn, whose style is a blend of Jackie Gleason and Heinrich Himmler, turned his attention again to his raw fish, adding to the morning coffee stains on his shirt front.

Both these men, who have access to cabinet-level members of many governments, have been touted as leading minds of the capitalist class. In fact, "Fat Herman," as he is known to friends, is something of a public-display item, next to whom the other psychotic "planners" of the Rockefeller faction are intended to look sane.

Among his most recent efforts are a study of Britain, calling into question the country's existence by the year 1980, and the preparation of a four-year development program for the "radical" government of Algeria.
