

Some People Have Some Very Cute Tricks Underway

The following statement was issued on June 25, by Lyndon H. LaRouche, Jr. U.S. Labor Party Chairman and Presidential Candidate.

A section of Carter's financial backers during the last election is now moving, openly and behind the scenes, to force Jimmy Carter's resignation from the Presidency and move Vice-President Walter Mondale into Carter's place. Indications from Western Europe are that this project has at least a certain degree of support from British financial circles.

From behind the scenes, the push is coming from New York financial groups historically associated with the Baring and Rothschild banking interests, and takes the form of a gang-up against the Rockefeller-centered interests. The political footwork is coming through the Democratic Party machine centered around Senator Hubert Humphrey. The hatchwork is coming from "left-CIA" networks and "left-CIA" spokesmen such as Marcus Raskin and Professor Noam Chomsky.

We have received indications of the way the threatened impeachment of Carter is about to break into the open from authoritative and credible sources. The evidence put together inside the United States dovetails with highly relevant rumblings we have picked up in Europe.

The Reasons For The Push

The forces moving with Humphrey against Carter are acting for a combination of good and bad reasons.

The best motive for dumping Carter among these circles is a desire to avoid thermonuclear war. The objective is to check David Rockefeller's power, and to get lunatic Brzezinski and his dummy Carter out before a new Middle East blow-up triggers the immediate threat of World War III.

Another motive is to maneuver the situation such that the full weight of the current monetary collapse falls on the Rockefeller interests, leaving margin for a U.S. government bailout of the combination of financial interests backing Mondale as "their man" in the situation.

Then there are other considerations afoot, mostly evil.

Naturally, all leading banking circles are lying like crazy in nearly everything they say publicly or to one another. Even banking heads in the second and third echelons of the various factions aren't being told what is actually being planned in the top circles. Nonetheless, the true state of affairs cannot be hidden — if one checks for the right signals in the right places.

The official line — the official lie — in the international banking community is, "All of us are sticking together in support of a bail-out of the New York banks. After all, if Rocky went under, we'd all go, too." In fact, the boys in the back room have operations already going into place, to pick Rockefeller's pinfeathers down to the skin, once the inevitable collapse of the Eurodollar market erupts.

How do we know that? It's simple. When a blowout occurs — and every top banker knows the monetary system cannot be propped up — there are only a very few, very definite options open to any banking group which wishes to survive the collapse: the transfer ruble and the Arab Monetary Fund. Keep your eye on those two targets, and watch who is sniffing around those objectives and in what way. That's how we know.

Meanwhile, the bankers are all energetically lying to the press, the governments, and to one another — waiting for the moment to make their move.

The key to bailing out one group of bankers while another major group goes under is to control the Executive branch and Congress of the United States. Hence, the game is get David Rockefeller's people out, especially that lunatic Zbigniew Brzezinski and that babbling dummy, Jimmy Carter.

It's easy; Carter himself has no significant political base in the electorate.

The political base for Carter in the 1976 campaign was the Humphrey and Kennedy machines, the neo-Fabian networks of Marcus Raskin, and the rest of the "left-CIA," plus the reluctantly given but efficient backing of the trade unions. With this combination, the major urban Democratic Party machines, although privately despising Carter, went along.

Pull out the support of the Humphrey and Kennedy machines, and given the growing hatred of Carter in the labor movement, poor Jimmy Carter would find himself tearfully resigning before he knew that the action to dump him was in progress. Carter is, as Coca-Cola's J. Paul Austin reportedly informed the boys in New York City, nothing but a handpicked puppet, as disposable as one of J. Paul's aluminum Coca-Cola cans.

So far, Carter's grip has been maintained chiefly through a massive effort by the combined Rockefeller and liberal Democrat machine. The effort required to prop up Carter is becoming greater with each passing event. In short, from the standpoint of the boys in the back room, this guy Carter is a massive liability and no asset. He represents nothing and he is nothing.

For the New York and London bankers backing the Mondale option, what is wanted is a fresh start on a new "first 100 days" of a new President. The Carter Administration has lost credibility — massively — and political momentum. West Europe and Japan openly despise Carter; the Soviets openly treat Carter as a lunatic — which is difficult to rebut — and, in the USA itself, any legislation passed down to the Congress with a Carter label on it already has two strikes against it for just that reason.

A Mondale Administration, presuming that Mondale as President follows the line of his patron Humphrey, would be a Fabian fascist administration. It would push to put through Nazi-modeled slave-labor "unemployment programs," savagely gut industry, and loot the population generally. The objective of that operation would be to scratch up a massive bailout kitty for the group of bankers pushing Mondale's chances.

"But that was the domestic Carter program!" you exclaim. More or less. The point is that Ole Dumb-bunny Jimmy Carter no longer has the credibility needed to push that Ole Program through. The boys who are just waiting to pick David Rockefeller's pinfeathers, come the monetary bust-out, think that by dumping Carter and getting a "fresh face" into the White House, they might have a good chance to push Ye Olde Bigge Swindle through the Congress — under the pressure of a monetary collapse situation.

Not The Only Game In Town

Senator Humphrey and Senator Kennedy are not running the only games in town. Nelson Rockefeller's crowd has one of the prettiest collection of dossiers a man could dream of owning. If Nelson digs down deeply enough into his archives, a lot of material some people hope had been "deep-sixed" will suddenly find its way into public print. Then there is the Whig game — which has the big card: the possibility of securing a package-agreement with the Arabs and Soviets.

On the Whig side, if certain industrialists needed to learn that lesson, the 48-hour emergency mobilization by certain AFL-CIO and other labor leaders around the Clinch River breeder reactor proves that the trade-union movement is the decisive margin of political power in the United States. If industrialists and high-technology farmers, together with the corresponding political combinations, move as a unit for an alternative economic policy, Senator Hubert Humphrey would be compelled to begin representing the industrial and agricultural interests of Minnesota, rather than scheming to impose fascist schemes upon the United States.

The chief problem at the moment is that only a small portion of the industrialist, farmer, and trade-union leaderships have paid serious and competent attention to the monetary-economic issues. We Whigs are fairly solid on the energy issue, but only a fraction of the Whig leaders have caught up with the importance and urgency of the establishment of a new monetary system.

For example, tens of billions of dollars of union pension funds are presently sitting in Chase Manhattan and other banks which are on the verge of a chain-reaction monetary collapse. Billions of those pension funds and other savings are already lost through the New York City and similarly unsalvageable swindles. Some industrial interests have their financial positions hanging out for the big chop in the same way.

Meanwhile, the Carter Administration and Arthur Burns are printing money at rates in the order of 20 percent annually in a shrinking economy, while New York bankers' austerity demands for indebted Third World nations are collapsing world and U.S. basic production levels and producing, as a result, a whopping balance of trade and balance of payments deficit.

When the trade-union leaderships and more of the industrialists wake up — at last — to the economic reality, and ignore the wild lies pouring out of an hysterical New York financial community, we can pull those forces together.

Until that happens, unless Nelson Rockefeller digs into his files and begins publishing Quaint Facts About Certain Fabians, it appears that Carter is going to make a tearful resignation rather soon, and a sleepy-eyed President Mondale will be grinning at you from the boob-tube.

Congress Threatens Carter With 'Constitutional Confrontation' Over Breeder

Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker (R-Tenn) warned Jimmy Carter late last week that any move from the White House to unilaterally phase out the Clinch River fission breeder reactor program will provoke a full-fledged "legal or constitutional confrontation."

Conservatives in Congress — hard-pressed by industrialists and a U.S. Labor Party-mobilized trade union movement — have already set the stage for such a confrontation with the Administration. On June 27, the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee voted 12-5 to fund the breeder reactor at $150 million, in contrast to the Administration's worse-than-nothing $33 million. Now all four committees with primary jurisdiction over the Energy Research and Development Administration's (ERDA) nuclear energy budget — the Senate Energy Committee, the House Science and Technology Committee and both the House and Senate Appropriations Committees — have recommended funding at a level exceeding nearly five-fold the amount Carter threatened to veto.

Sen. Baker's warning of a constitutional crisis is the public side of the largely backroom-based anti-Carter bloc which, according to knowledgeable Capitol Hill sources, has "chosen the breeder to fight and defeat the Carter Administration." This bloc, mostly conservative Republicans and southern Democrats, tactically allied with some liberal Democrats dissatisfied with Carter's bankrupted foreign policy, is now thrashing out whether or not to use the upcoming vote on the breeder to Carter-gate the Trilateral Commission's puppet President.

A recent ruling by the Government Accounting Office (GAO) gives Congress all the legal ammunition needed to carry out impeachment. The ruling, made at the request of Senators Henry Jackson (D-Wash) and Baker, states that in the GAO's opinion the Administration "lacks the legal authority to implement the President's plan" in that it preempts congressional prerogatives. Carter may have violated federal law by demanding that Congress eliminate the breeder program before repealing the original statutes, which authorize the government
