

intimated strongly that, should the Brzezinski policy prevail in the United States, West Germany will declare neutrality!

Of particular importance is the statement of West German military official General von Bulow, reported in the daily Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung, that his government disagrees with NATO Secretary-General Alexander Haig on the "Autumn Reforger 1978" maneuvers. The newspaper reported that von Bulow spoke of a "quarrel" between his country and NATO because "the (West German) government doesn't like these kinds of maneuvers." Among the most massive in NATO history, the Autumn Reforger maneuvers have a specific anti-Soviet political significance at this time. They were privately described by a French defense ministry source as "a strictly political matter, and we will deal with it that way. They are not normal strategic maneuvers."

Even more significant than von Bulow's remarks was the West German government's subsequent unprecedented official confirmation of a fight between West Germany and NATO. On Sept. 7 Chancellor Schmidt's press spokesman Klaus Bölling told reporters that indeed there was a "quarrel," but added that it had been "settled." "There are no more problems between the government and General Haig," he said.

At the same time, Chancellor Schmidt has insisted emphatically during two election addresses during the past week that the core of his political strategy is embodied in the trade and development agreements signed earlier this year with Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev.

From the Mideast came a similar message. Syrian Foreign Minister Kaddam has responded to the floating of the proposal to extend NATO or NATO-type deployments to the Middle East by calmly reporting to other Middle East Arab leaders that through the Soviet nuclear umbrella the Syrians — and other willing Arab states — have the capacity to counter any such strategic policy.

Meanwhile the Shah of Iran, in an interview with the East German Neues Deutschland on the eve of his visit to that country, called for "political cooperation on the international level." And Greek Foreign Minister Ralis is currently in Moscow reviewing the Mideast and Mediterranean situation, planning an exchange of visits by Brezhnev and Greece's Karamanlis, and signing major economic deals for shipping, nuclear power, oil, and aluminum plants.

New Anti-USLP Assassination Threats

LaRouche targeted by Black-Guelph Zionist terror networks

Debra Hanania-Freeman, the U.S. Labor Party-endorsed candidate for U.S. Congress from Baltimore, was threatened at gun point on Sept. 5 in broad daylight. As she attempted to enter her campaign headquarters, Hanania-Freeman was approached by a black youth who put a large revolver to her head and threatened: "You go in there and I'll blow your head off." The youth and a female accomplice took the candidate's pocketbook and fled on foot.

The next night, Stuart Rosenblatt, the U.S. Labor Party City Council candidate in Washington, D.C., was shot at with a BB gun as he entered an apartment building where a number of Labor Party members live. Rosenblatt was returning from a candidates' night where he had given a lengthy presentation on the Order of Malta's control over international terrorism and drug running and the Order's assassination efforts against USLP Chairman Lyndon H. LaRouche, Jr. and other leading sponsors of the Bonn-Bremen accords.

These latest incidents against members of the U.S. Labor Party are part of an international pattern of assaults, attempted assassination, and slander of prominent Labor Party spokesmen and candidates in the U.S. and Europe. This pattern is striking evidence that the City of London and its international Zionist Lobby-Anti-Defamation League agents are now preparing for a hit against Lyndon LaRouche, who is the author of the International Development Bank approach to a new world monetary system adopted at Bremen in July to replace the British-corrupted International Monetary Fund.

Furthermore, in all important details, it is the same pattern of harassment and assault that emerged immediately prior to an attempted assassination of LaRouche on July 16 in Detroit, Mich. — including the use of black youth to do the Zionist Lobby's dirty work. It has been reported and confirmed by intelligence services of various nations that such a campaign of terror and assassination is, in fact, "live."

The Conspiracy to Murder Then . . .

The previous assassination operation against LaRouche began in the first week of July with the publication and circulation of a slander montage against the U.S. Labor Party under the letterhead of

European Labor Party Gains Victory Against Bundespost

The European Labor Party in West Germany won a major victory this week when the Federal Postal Ministry intervened to overturn heavy financial demands placed on the organization by the Bundespost as a condition for maintaining the ELP's telephone service and other communications equipment. The Bundespost is controlled by Walter Hesselbach, a leading figure in German Israeli- and Rothschild-linked Zionist circles.

At the same time, however, the National Caucus of Labor Committees, the cadre organization which founded the ELP's U.S. co-thinker organization the U.S. Labor Party, is faced with a summary judgment for $90,000 awarded Sept. 6 to the Bank of Nova Scotia in a lawsuit against the NCLC. A New York State Supreme Court judge ruled favorably on the bank's claim that a $90,000 credit to the NCLC was merely a bank transfer error. The Bank of Nova Scotia is controlled by Eagle Star Insurance Company, which also controls the financial interests of whiskey magnate and Zionist leader Edgar Bronfman. Like most British insurance companies, Eagle Star is a cover for British intelligence operations.

Under Hesselbach's direction, the Bundespost had been threatening to cut the ELP's business phone and the private phone lines of three ELP members unless some $16,000 — mostly in deposits — was paid on the party's account by Sept. 3.

After a call by ELP officials to the Postal Ministry to complain of the Bundespost demands, during which the ELP warned that the party was planning to hold rallies throughout West Germany, Europe and in the the United States against the financial threat, the Bundespost contacted the ELP headquarters in Wiesbaden and asked that the demonstrations be cancelled. Postal Ministry officials explained that the Ministry had intervened to reverse the Bundespost demands, and said that all phone service to individual ELP members would be restored, and that the party would be given a 14-month period to consolidate its debt.

The Postal Ministry's move came as a result of well-placed international pressure and, within West Germany, the exposure of the Bundespost as an intelligence and terror conduit for networks operating as part of the Hesselbach apparatus.

the Heritage Foundation designed to convince corporate and security officers of major U.S. banks and corporations that the Labor Party was a terrorist organization engaged in industrial espionage for variously East European and Soviet intelligence.

This slander and the one in circulation now are like those circulated since at least 1975 by Georgia Representative Larry McDonald. In December 1975 McDonald inserted into the Congressional Record a slander authored by his aides Herbert Rommerstein, an ADL intelligence stringer, and John H. Rees, a British Intelligence agent, that the Labor Party is an East German intelligence and terrorist organization. In July 1977, McDonald contributed the slander that the USLP is a terrorist, paramilitary, and totalitarian organization to the John Birch Society's Review of the News. McDonald has been instrumental in isolating conservatives and conservative organizations from collaboration with the Labor Party.

The intended effect of the Heritage Foundation slander was to similarly isolate LaRouche from potential collaborators in the effort to bring the U.S. economy into the then-emerging new world monetary system. The free enterprise Heritage Foundation is directly linked to the British Round Table and Rothschild networks.

Prior to LaRouche's arrival in Detroit, personnel from the U.S. Labor Party's Executive Protection section began to pick up evidence of surveillance. This deployment and the later attempted "hit" were gridded back to agencies linked to Zionist Lobby agent Max Fisher, agencies which exercise control over various gutter-level terrorist gangs like Detroit's Communist Labor Party. Fisher himself is an important link into the British-based Order of St. John of Jerusalem — the masterminds of the "hit" attempt. Fisher is a member of the Jerusalem Foundation, the "Hofjuden" division of that Order.

On July 16, two vehicles, both driven by black men in their early twenties, attempted to block the exit and entrance to Detroit's Veterans' Memorial Hall, where LaRouche was scheduled for a public appearance. A slight delay in LaRouche's arrival allowed for the two cars to be removed.

This attempt to entrap is the characteristic modus operandi of terrorist hits like the kidnappings of West German industrialist Hanns-Martin Schleyer and former Italian Premier Aldo Moro.

...And Now

The current international deployment against the Labor Party is being run in the United States by the shock troops of the B'nai B'rith's Anti-Defamation League and in Europe by the Paris-based International League against Anti-Semitism (LICA) to stop the Labor Party from promoting a policy of "containment" against Israel until that nation becomes a responsible member of the world community.

On both sides of the Atlantic, the same slander is being hurled by "left" and "right" that the Labor Party is "Nazi-Communist." In fact, Zionist Lobby agent Sen. Jacob Javits's aide Novak this week volunteered his opinion of the USLP to a caller: "Some aspects of the Labor Party are Nazi, some are Communist."

This slander follows the Aug. 7 release by the Anti-Defamation League of an internal memorandum describing the U.S. Labor Party as an undesirable left-wing disruptive group tied to dangerous anti-Semitic right-wing groups like the Liberty Lobby in Washington, D.C.

ADL operatives have also been observed surveilling Labor Party rallies nationally, and taking down license plates of members' cars.

At the end of August, a pattern emerged of assault against Labor Party members. On Aug. 21, Michigan Labor Party member Susan Boswell suffered a concussion in a hit-and-run incident in Grand Rapids. On Aug. 31, a Boston Labor Party member narrowly escaped a hit-and-run attempt while organizing at an intersection in the Boston suburb of Quincy. Police have identified and arrested the driver, Alan R. Morris of Braintree, Mass.

Yesterday's threat against Debra Hanania-Freeman followed by less than a week a telephone threat to the candidate's husband made after a half-hour campaign TV broadcast in which Hanania-Freeman documented British-Israeli intelligence control of international terrorism, the threat and implications of a Middle East war, and the full content of the Bonn-Bremen economic accords. The male caller threatened Mr. Freeman: "You better tell your lady to lay off, or she'll get hurt."

Washington candidate Rosenblatt in his campaign has emphasized a program calling for a crackdown on drug-running. The drug trade is a key component of the British-Order of Malta control capacity over the United States. Rosenblatt has also exposed the involvement of an opponent, City Council candidate Hilda Mason, in slander-terror operations against the Labor Party run through the terrorist CounterSpy organization.

Baltimore police have arrested one youth believed to have been involved in the robbery-attack against Hanania-Freeman, and law enforcement officials in both Baltimore and Washington, D.C. are viewing the incidents as part of a broader national terrorism capability.
