

nurses to perform this function.”

A National Health Service-commissioned report by McKinsey and Company, calling for saving $32 billion per year by drastic cuts in health care, was leaked to the press last week. King’s Fund chief economist John Appleby (quoted in Time magazine, Sept. 9, 2009) responded that these savings must be accomplished by finding “ways to counter rising health-care costs associated with an aging population, expensive new medical treatments and rising patient expectations.” King’s Fund chief executive Niall Dickson chimed in that, rather than doing more with less resources, “Doing less with less seems a more realistic scenario.”

The Royal euthanasia program was introduced as a pilot project in 2003 and 2004, by Simon Stevens, Blair’s chief advisor on health policy 2001-04). In 2007, Stevens came to the United States to spread the euthanasia project here, becoming vice president of the Minnesota-based UnitedHealth Group, a massive private health insurance company for the United States and Britain, including the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP). Stevens’ official job is to advise all private health insurers to get behind the new agenda for health-care reform.

Continuing as a trustee of the King’s Fund for Prince Charles in London, Stevens connects President Obama with the London-Wall Street axis, for implementation of its urgent strategy in the face of financial catastrophe.

Simon Stevens and His Mobile Death Squads

Sept. 17—Royal Family courtier Simon Stevens was Britain’s “Death Minister,” simultaneously advising Prime Minister Tony Blair and successive health ministers from 1997 to 2004.

From that post, in 1999, he established NICE, the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence, to ration health care. In 2000, he crafted the plan for creeping privatization of the National Health Service. In 2002, as fascist financiers claimed that the elderly were “clogging the beds,” Stevens arranged a National Health Service contract with UnitedHealth Group’s Evercare Hospice unit, to conduct pilot studies on how to restrict hospital access for older patients.

Based on the mind-set in the Evercare contract and Evercare’s pilot-project report, Stevens then put into effect the Liverpool Care Pathway, an experimental program for killing the frail elderly.

In 2004, Stevens left the Blair government to become chief executive of UnitedHealth Group’s European division. Then, in 2007, he moved to the United States to become chief executive of the elderly (“Ovations”) division of the company, where he oversees the Evercare Hospice unit. The Minneapolis-based UnitedHealth Group was founded in 1974, as an outgrowth of President Richard Nixon’s 1971 deal to establish health management organizations (HMOs).

UnitedHealth Group and its allies at the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation put millions of dollars into the Dartmouth Atlas of Health Care 2008, a propaganda sheet that is demanding lower medical costs (see series by Dr. Ned Rosinsky, EIR, July 31, Sept. 11, 2009).

Stevens’ photograph is displayed on the website of the American Association of Retired Persons, whose 40 million members are advised to buy AARP-endorsed insurance—from Evercare. In effect, UnitedHealth has simply bought AARP for this purpose, paying for this promotion.

During Spring 2009, Stevens was all over the American media, beating the drums for austerity “reform.” Quoting the phony Dartmouth Atlas statistics, Stevens demanded $540 billion in cuts from payments for medical services to the elderly and poor.

Working with the George Soros apparatus, Stevens is now a central player in the London-Wall Street axis that is driving President Obama’s health-care reform. Business Week (Aug. 17), gloating under the headline, “Why Health Insurers Are Winning,” featured a full-page photo of Stevens, overshadowing the U.S. Capitol Building.
