

Click here for Full Issue of EIR Volume 48, Number 41, October 15, 2021

Schacht, Hitler’s Economics Minister 1933-38 —ed.]. It is a form of cannibalistic economics, about which these people could not care less, because the super-rich—these billionaires and multimillionaires—well, why are the real estate prices out of control? Because they’re using their speculative money, they invested in real estate, they invested in other so-called physical goods; and then you can have a hyperinflationary blow-out which wipes out the debt. And then after this, when they come up with their new system, they will control everything, and a lot of people will not have made it.

So this is the most brutal assault on the living standard, on freedom, on democracy, on all these beautiful values they talk about. It’s all a fraud. And the problem is that not enough people are speaking out against it, because this is really serious stuff. This is fascism, not any less than it was with the Nazis in Germany and other fascist movements in the ’20s and ’30s in Europe. So people have to wake up, because this is serious stuff which is threatening the lives of many people.

Green Fascists Speak: ‘The Planet’ Requires You To Live in Poverty

Oct. 8—The oligarchs of “green finance” and the “Great Reset” are centered in London—with Prince Charles at their head—and Wall Street. They have taken to declaring in so many words, that the human aspiration for economic progress is now verboten, because it is inconsistent with the demands of “the planet” that the human species end its carbon emissions.

World Economic Forum Executive Chairman and founder, Klaus Schwab, a bosom friend of Prince Charles and a non-stop writer of books about the “Great Reset” and Green New Deal, makes that monstrous declaration in his latest book.

Speaking, as it happens, about Ethiopia’s infrastructure and development activity, Schwab wrote that:—

[it] reveals the central conundrum of the combat against climate change. The same force that helps people escape from poverty and lead a decent life is the one that is destroying the livability of our planet for future generations. The emissions that lead to climate change are not just the result of a selfish generation of industrialists or Western baby boomers. They are the consequence of the desire to create a better future for oneself.

—“Stakeholder Capitalism—A Global Economy That Works for Progress, People and the Planet.” Wiley, January 2021, page 154.

The Economist, the magazine which speaks for the City of London financial powers, declared in an Oct. 4 article titled, “The age of fossil-fuel abundance is dead,” —that “Dwindling investment in oil, gas and coal means high prices are here to stay.” Moreover, the magazine’s editors go on to say that this energy scarcity will “get even worse,” because energy investments are harder and harder to make “in an era of decarbonization.” This will bring about “inflationary upheaval ... but it may at least accelerate the shift to greener—and cheaper—sources of energy.”

They did not acknowledge that this era of decarbonization is entirely a political decision by the financial powers and billionaires, and that energy investments are harder to make for this reason, not any physical economic factor.

The editors bared London’s teeth more viciously in conclusion:

The longer prices stay high, the more likely it becomes that the transition to clean energy ultimately buries the fossil-fuel industry. Consumers, in the meantime, must brace for more shortages. The age of abundance is dead. [emphasis added —ed.]

Klaus Schwab, Founder and Executive Chairman, World Economic Forum.

WEF/Benedikt von Loebell